WHO SHOT EDDIE WELCH?

And Was Eddie Up a Ladder, or Running, at the Time?

Never since that unexplained conundrum, "Who shot Billy Patterson?" has there been a sifter probe than the one that is now worrying Roundman George Blom, of the Bellevue Hospital Prison, and Detective Lockwood, of the Thirty-third Precinct.

It is the present "Eddie Welch" problem on which the officers are laboring.

Edward Welch is a handsome young bachelor of twenty-four New York winters. He has a wealth of black hair, a bit of a mustache and shows little gray eyes. Muffled up to the nose under a quilt, those sharp eyes peer at the walls from the first cot bed in the "cage," Bellevue Hospital.

Edward is a reticent man, but he talked just enough yesterday to get into a cell as well as a hospital.

He is a bookster of lemons, and he drove up to Bellevue Hospital at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon on his lemon wagon. He alighted with painful effort and limped into the reception room.

There he related that he lived in bachelor apartments at the Stanwix House, Third Avenue and Sixty-fifth street; that as he was passing through Sixty-fifth street, between Third Avenue and Eastern Boulevard, on his load of lemons, there came a sting in his left leg, and then he knew that he was shot.

Who the shooter was, Edward hardly knew. The shot was fired from the back of the cage, the nearest light, and later, when Roundman Blom remonstrated him that there was no Eastern Boulevard at Sixty-fifth street, he concluded that he got hurt in One Hundred and Thirty-third street.

Now, had Edward been drunk these little things would have been excused; but he was "dead sober," and his discrepancies caused the suspicions of Blom, that Edward was not engaged solely in the lemon trade when shot in the leg. Blom reported Edward as a suspicious person.

Then Dr. Chase, the surgeon who extracted a 20-caliber pistol bullet from the front of Edward's leg, did not allow suspicion when he reported that the bullet had entered just above the knee on the under side of the leg, and travelled upward six inches and around the bone, and came out near the thigh in front.

Dr. Chase said with professional confidence that either Edward was up a ladder when he reported that the bullet had entered just above the knee on the under side of the leg, and travelled upward six inches and around the bone, and came out near the thigh in front.

Edward, having thus tangled things up, got himself tangled up with the law and was made a prisoner pending an investigation, which would be necessary, for it would not be difficult for any one waiting the lemon peddler to find him any time during the next two weeks, which will be required to mend him up in a shape for business.

Having taken himself into the cage, Edward's caltrop mouth closed to give him, and nothing more can be got out of him about that shooting affair, or what he was doing when the shot was fired.

Detective Lockwood is taking up in Yorkville and again in Morrisania. "Who shot Eddie Welch?"

GAVE HIS LEG FOR HIS LIFE.

Great Nerve of a Trainman Who Got Caught in a Railroad Frog.

Alexander Killeen, a Pennsylvania Railroad brakeman, while coupling cars at the foot of Fifth street, Jersey City, today allowed his foot to become fastened in a frog.

In order to save his life he threw himself backward, breaking his leg at the ankle.

Only this he escaped having the cars pass over his body. He was removed to St. Francis Hospital.

SUNNEY DIDN'T KILL OLD APT.

Coroner Weston Decides That the Man Was Not Murdered.

William Sunney, a young man employed as extra elevator conductor in Temple Court, was arraigned in the Tombs Police Court this morning by Detective Canavan, of the 10th street police station, on a charge of being implicated in the mysterious death of his old room-mate, Michael Apt, of No. 223 William street last night. He was remanded to await the action of the Coroner.

The deceased, who was sixty years old and a machinist by occupation, was found by Sunney lying dead on the floor of their room, covered with blood and bruises, about 6.30 o'clock last evening.

The young man had just returned from his day's work. He hurried off for assistance and summoned Dr. J. M. Parazza, of 35 City Hall place. The latter came to the room where the dead man lay, and found that Apt's face was covered with blood, though the body was still quite warm.

The dead man's nose was broken, on his head were three fresh-looking wounds, one of which extended across to the left forehead, and in his right hand was tightly clenched a small-sized monkey wrench.

The body lay at the foot of a miserable-looking bed, and the bedclothes were spotted with blood.

Sunney meanwhile had notified the Oak street police, and Detective Canavan had an interview with him.

Parazza declared that, in his opinion, the man was seized with apoplexy or heart disease and sustained his fall. He said that Sunney was arrested, despite his protestations of ignorance as to what caused Apt's death, and he was locked up to await the action of the Coroner.

The room where old Apt lay on the top floor front of a building which is one of the landmarks in William street. After Sunney discovered the body he called in Charles Sullivan, colored janitor of the building, to help him in putting Apt to bed as he believed he was drunk, but when the latter saw the old man he declared that he was sober.

Sunney, who is a tall, red-haired young man, said to an Evening World reporter this morning that he had no recollection of the incident.

"I have nothing to fear, for I am innocent. I know no more about his death than an unborn child," he said.

"I have reported him for several months, and he was much attached to me. I had lived with him when his wife was alive. I can't tell you for the wounds on his head, unless he was drunk and fell against something in the room."

"It was at my work all day yesterday, and did not go home after I left it until 6.30 o'clock."

Deputy Coroner Weston made an autopsy on Apt's body and found that he was killed by a blow to the head, which was fatal. There had apparently been a hemorrhage of the nose, as a small amount of blood was found on the floor.

Dr. Weston is of the opinion that the man died a natural death. He thinks that he was taken ill and fell against a table, striking his nose and head, producing the hemorrhage from which he died.

NO NEWS OF THE LYMPH.

The Package Sent by Prof. Koch to Dr. Jacobi Lost in the Mail.

The letter-carrier whose route takes in Dr. Jacobi's house, 110 West Thirty-fourth street, left plenty of mail at the house today, but in none of the packages was the mysteriously missing Koch lymph, which the doctor has been anxiously awaiting from Berlin.

This is particularly expediting to Dr. Jacobi, who is being urged by scores of sufferers clamorous for a course of treatment with the magic virus.

The package was mailed to the doctor more than two days ago, addressed simply, "Jacobi, New York."

It is believed that this is the cause of its delay, as postal authorities are investigating the matter.
